Rick Forney on Eric Wood: The plan is for Eric to be our third baseman, but he can play first and he can play outfield. Eric's a hitter—we're expecting him to come in and be a presence in the middle of the lineup and produce some offense for us. I really enjoyed communicating with him and he's very much looking forward to this opportunity.

Rick Forney on Kent Hasler: Kent’s a really good, young right-hander. He did pretty much all you can do in the Frontier League. The strikeouts to innings pitched really stand out. He threw the ball well this winter and got signed by the Diamondbacks. Unfortunately, his audition time was cut short due to the pandemic, but if he can duplicate his numbers in our league, then he’s a guy who will have an opportunity to get back to affiliated ball.

Rick Forney on Frank Duncan: Frank's a really good starter we've been trying to get for a couple of years. He's one of those guys like Mitch Lambson who will take the ball every fifth day, log some innings for you, and give the team a chance to win every time he's out there. I'm glad to have him in the rotation.

Rick Forney on Logan Hill: Logan has a really good power bat. He's still young, still hungry, and can play multiple positions for us. He's anxious for this opportunity, and I really enjoyed my conversations with him while recruiting. He has Double-A and Triple-A experience. There's a lot of pop in that bat.

Rick Forney on Dylan Rheault: I'm excited to add Dylan. He's really trained hard the last couple of years to increase his velocity and try to get to the Big Leagues. He had a nice run with the Giants' organization and is still in really good shape. He's figured some things out about pitching, and I think he can be a big addition to our bullpen.

Rick Forney on Jose Jose: Jose is a really good left-hander coming off an unbelievable season in the Can-Am League. He was one of the better relievers in Puerto Rico this past winter. He's a guy that can fill many roles for you on the pitching staff, whether it's the seventh, eighth, or ninth inning. He can do a lot of things, so hopefully he can help shorten the game up for us.

Rick Forney on John Gorman: John's had a nice career in the Athletics' organization as a bullpen guy. He doesn't walk a lot of guys, has a good slider, and punches guys out when the opportunity presents itself. He's a guy that could be a starter in our league as well because of his pitchability. He's played some high-level baseball, so the speed of our league won't overwhelm him. He's hungry and anxious to play, and I love the versatility he has. I think John can be a really good pitcher in our league.

Rick Forney on Mitchell Lambson: I'm very glad Mitch has elected to play with us again for the 2020 season. He's coming off arguably the best season ever by a Goldeyes' starting pitcher, and possibly in American Association history. Mitch's game-to-game consistency was remarkable to watch, and I hope he can continue to give our club a solid chance to win again every fifth day when he takes the ball.

Rick Forney on Kevin Hilton: Kevin had a really good season last year. We saw him when he was with the AirHogs, and we didn't get a ton of great swings off of him. He's got a ton of movement on his fastball—he'll sink it and cut it, and he'll change speeds. He's a guy that took the ball every fifth day, and was really reliable for six or seven innings every time out.
